The examiner cited a prior patent by Saurer which was found subsequent to the applicants Amendment-A. And, how Saurer presents a structure that lends itself to the applicants invention. The examiner felt that even though Saurer did not explicitly describe an embodiment similar to the Applicants, that Saurer was physically capable of performing this function.

The applicant offered that Saurer did not in fact offer the necessary display resolution. The Applicant's invention is in fact a new method of operation.

Both the Examiner and Supervisor offered to assist this Applicant in devising new claims to define over Saurer. In a subsequent conversation, the Examiner stated that no such rewording had been thought of.
